

Abstract of the Disclosure

A point on a surface of a detailed shape model is selected. Selected points are connected by lines, and 5 a plane which is configured by the selected points, and the lines connecting the points as sides is finally formed when an instruction to create a plane is issued with a mouse. These operations are performed for the entire detailed shape model, whereby a simplified model 10 the shape of which is simplified is created.